

Mining in Africa

Africa has so far been screened from the worst effects of the global economic downturn. This is due in large part to the effectiveness of currency exchange controls; but with the continued volatility in commodity prices (commodities such as gold, silver, copper and oil having been responsible for much of the rapid economic growth in sub-Saharan Africa over the last 5 years), will Africa continue to be insulated from the recessionary storms affecting much of the rest of the world?

African Business, the continent's best-selling business magazine, will publish a special report on Mining in Africa. This report will analyse the importance and growth of the mining sector in Africa. It will look at individual country effort to attract mining corporations, as well as the crucial balance that these have to achieve to ensure nature and people are respected as much as profit and productivity.

African Business will look at the key players in the sector, profiling the leading personalities and companies in the industry. Mining in Africa will be published to coincide with The 2010 Mining Indaba at the Cape Town International Convention Centre, the leading global event for the mining industry, where IC Publications will have exhibition space, allowing potential advertisers to showcase themselves to mining industry senior management, governments and high net-worth investors.
